Brian has been a member of the legal community for almost 10 years and has aided many clients in their small business and estate planning needs.

The goal of Brian's practice is to help his clients get their affairs in order. Recognizing the emotional difficulties estate law can lay on families and individuals, he strives to make the law approachable and fulfilling.

Brian is client-focused and loves meeting with people to discuss their legal needs, with an eye for where his expertise can be of the most value.
